Official says override dupe may hit students

By Mark Edgar
Student Writer

SIU students may be penalized by paying "substantially larger fees and charges" next semester if the legislature fails Wednesday to restore University appropriations, warns the general secretary of the SIU System.

James Brown said Monday that although tuition increases were avoided during the last budgeting period, "we are going through a painful process of reallocation and other costs to students may rise."

Warren Buffman, associate vice president for financial affairs, said Monday that the amount of academic services paid by tuition amounts to only 14 per cent of last year's state appropriations.

Accusing some legislators of "not recognizing the priorities of higher education," Brown said SIU has not received enough money for the services it provides.

In an effort to bolster support among the legislators, Brown said he will be in Springfield to help coordinate lobbying efforts.

The veto and reduction measures taken by Gov. Daniel Walker have harmed the morale of faculty and staff members and "have significantly hampered their efforts to meet both the present and future needs of the state," he said.

Although he predicted a close vote on the override, Brown said he was encouraged by the motions of two "powerful" Republicans to restore funds to other university systems.

Brown said Rep. David Shapiro, 37th District, is sponsoring a bill to restore funds to the Board of Regents, and Stanley Weaver, 52nd District, is sponsoring a motion for the University of Illinois.

Brown said the reduction in faculty and staff salaries also justifies an override.

"A faculty committed to the increase of quality and productivity needs better encouragement than is provided by a steady decline in purchasing power," he said.

Another factor emphasized by Brown was the loss of funds committed to health, energy and environmental programs. Statistics show that Walker vetoed $960,000 in this area of program development, Brown said.

Sue Pace, associate vice president for academic affairs, said the decline of support for higher education restricts "the basic needs and services of the University."

Pace said SIU needs the funds "to meet its mission as a graduate research institution."

She added that public unawareness of the seriousness of the lack of funding can be "harmful to many new programs — and University growth."

Faculty, students boost override push

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU faculty and students hope to help the University regain money lost to Gov. Walker's budget veto when the Illinois General Assembly convenes Wednesday for the veto override session.

The Faculty Senate, the Graduate Student Council (GSC) and the Student Government have all passed resolutions asking that the money cut from SIU's budget be restored.

Undergraduate and graduate students are planning to go to Springfield during the override session to appeal to Illinois legislators.

This summer, Walker cut $4 million from the SIU's $108.7 million budget which had been approved by the Illinois General Assembly. SIU had requested a 23.3 per cent increase for the fiscal 1977 budget, but Walker's cuts brought the total amount to only 88 per cent of the requested amount.

John Jackson, president of the Faculty Senate, said he has personally written 226 letters to Illinois legislators asking them to support higher education funding.

"We have received a reasonable number of responses from legislators in areas as far away as Chicago," Jackson said Friday. Most of the legislators have expressed their concern and said they would give the override resolution close consideration when it comes before the Illinois General Assembly.

Kenneth V. Buzbee D-Carbondale and Bruce Richmond, D-58th, have promised to support the override, Jackson said.

Jackson said he is "ambivalent" about chances to win back higher education money that Walker trimmed from the University budget this summer.

"There is a developing feeling that the state is close to broke," Jackson said. "If that feeling prevails when the General Assembly convenes this week, there is not going to be any override for anyone."

Tom Jones, Student Government president, said Monday that Student Government will also be sending letters to Illinois legislators expressing concern for SIU's financial situation.

Six undergraduate student representatives will be going to Springfield after Thanksgiving to appeal to the legislators, Jones said.

"We are going to talk with legislators and show them that it is not just the faculty that is worried about money," Jones said. "We are losing good instructors, and we want to increase their salaries so we can keep them" he said.

Ray Huebschmann, GSC president, said Friday GSC representatives have written a form letter to be sent to Illinois legislators. He said the letter supports the override of Walker's budget veto and asks the legislators to restore higher education funding to the level that was approved in June.

Huebschmann said graduate student representatives plan to go to Springfield during the override session to urge legislators to vote for the override.

Fighting for the override is worth the effort, Jackson said. There is a need for "a more sustained effort in lobbying at SIU," he said.

Vulnerable economies under gun of OPEC hike

By George Gedda
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The spectre of serious worldwide economic effects is seen as the best hope for persuading the OPEC oil cartel to forego an anticipated oil price increase, State Department officials said Friday.

The United States has been consulting closely with Japan and the Western European countries to devise a strategy for averting a price increase and also has made its views known to the oil producers.

But officials said American leverage over the oil countries may be diminishing. Since the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74, U.S. dependence upon Arab producers has increased by 85 per cent, according to official statistics.

Officials said other major importing countries, particularly Great Britain and Italy, are even more vulnerable than the United States to an oil-price increase because of their severe balance-of-payments problems.

The OPEC nations will meet in Qatar in mid-December to discuss prices and unofficial forecasts indicate an increase of between 10 to 20 per cent may be imposed.

International inflation is regarded by the OPEC countries as the chief justification for a price increase.

On the basis of new economic, political and military ties with the Arab countries, the United States has been hoping to persuade them to hold the line on prices.

But officials admit privately that the victory of Jimmy Carter in the presidential election ago has probably reduced U.S. leverage among Arab countries.

Brown to explain board staff operation

By Joel Spinner
Student Writer

The general secretary of the SIU System, James M. Brown, will address the Faculty Senate Tuesday in the Student Center Mississippi River Room to correct misunderstandings about the operation of the board staff.

Brown said Monday he plans to discuss some of the characteristics and functions of his office and answer questions for Faculty Senate members.

Brown said he feels a major reason for any misconceptions of the functions of the board staff is that "most people are more apt to be locally oriented and the functions of the board staff are system oriented." Brown said he thinks some misunderstandings exist about recent salary adjustments for the board staff and the development of its budget.

Brown said he called John Jackson, president of the Faculty Senate, when he "sensed" that there was some misunderstanding among the faculty on how his office should function. Jackson then suggested that he should speak to the Faculty Senate.

Jackson said last week that he feels the monthly reports to the senate by David Bateman, vice-president of the Faculty Senate, influenced Brown's decision to address the group.

During the senate's first two meetings, this year, Bateman criticized the board staff's operations and recent salary adjustments given to staff members.

The Faculty Senate will also consider a bill calling for a facultywide referendum on collective bargaining. The bill also asks that the Board of Trustees establish procedures by which collective bargaining can be implemented at SIU if faculty support for

The Faculty Senate also plans to discuss updating its sabbatical leave policy and a change in its operating papers to deal with the admission of the Law School to the Faculty Senate.

The admission of the Law School would increase senate membership to 30 for fiscal year 1977-78. Each senate constituency will have one representative for each 55 faculty members. The Law School was formerly represented by the College of Liberal Arts.

Industrial output falls two straight months

By G. David Wallace
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's industrial output has declined for two consecutive months, the Federal Reserve board said Monday, marking the first drops in the key indicator since the start of the economic recovery in April 1975.

The Federal Reserve said output dropped 5 of 1 per cent in October, and it revised the September figures, which had originally shown no change, to show a 2 of 1 per cent decline.

The industrial production indicator historically marks the onset and end of recessions, although short-term adjustments are not necessarily infallible indicators.

The industrial production figures were clouded somewhat by the effects of strikes, but the back-to-back declines were the strongest signal yet that the economy may be faltering.

The industrial sector, which includes the nation's mines, factories and utilities, generates about one-third of the jobs in the economy. When that sector fails to grow or drops back, the employment picture can be seriously damaged.

Further signs of economic problems have included a virtually flat profile over the last four months for retail sales, which initially sparked last year's recovery. And the government's index fashioned to foreshadow future trends in the economy have pointed downward in the last two months.

The drop in the Federal Reserve's industrial production index to 130.4 per cent of its 1967 average went a long way toward explaining a key factor in the growth of unemployment.

U.S. vetoes membership in U.N. for Vietnam again

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States vetoed Vietnam's application for United Nations membership Monday night in the Security Council.

The council voted 14-1 in favor of a resolution recommending that the General Assembly admit Vietnam to the United Nations. The Security Council's recommendation is required for the assembly to act on a membership application.

The negative vote by the United States, one of the five veto-holding permanent members of the council, killed the resolution.

It was the fifth time in slightly more than 14 months the United States vetoed Vietnamese applications for membership. The other four vetoes were cast on two occasions, on separate applications for membership by North and South Vietnam before the Southeast Asian nation was unified.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton, explaining the latest veto, said Vietnam was not qualified for U.N.

membership because its failure to account for some 800 Americans still missing in action from the Vietnamese war showed it lacked a "humanitarian" attitude.

North Vietnamese troops and Viet Cong guerrillas forced the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government to surrender in April 1975.

Both the "Provisional" South Vietnamese government and North Vietnam applied in July 1975 for U.N. membership. The applications were vetoed by America in August 1975 and again when they were reconsidered in September. The two zones were formally united as one Vietnam in February 1976.

Vietnam's membership request was sponsored by 10 of the 15 council members — the Soviet Union, China, Romania, France, Sweden, Guyana, Pakistan, Benin, Libya and Tanzania.

The other four permanent members of the council, who hold veto power along with the United States, voted for the application. They are Russia, China, Britain and France.

Extra test period planned

Dead day wins try for finals this term

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Final exams will begin on a Monday instead of a Saturday this semester, but an extra examination period has been scheduled to make up for the lost day.

Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, approved the modified examination schedule Thursday to comply with student requests. Both the Student Senate and the Graduate Student Council (GSC) have passed resolutions calling for a 24-hour period between the last day of classes and the first day of exams.

The new schedule requires scheduling an examination period on Friday evening before the last period of exams on Saturday. Sue Pace, associate vice president for academic affairs and research, said Monday the number of examination periods will be the same this semester as in the past.

"As far as we know, there should be no problems," Pace said.

Horton has approved the schedule for only this semester to determine its efficiency and student response to it. Pace said Horton will be seeking constituency groups' reactions to the revised schedule before next semester's final exam schedule is made.

Winfred Bowman, a graduate student in computer science and author of the resolution passed by the Student Senate and GSC, said SIU is the only school in the state which has not allowed a "dead day" between classes and exams. Before SIU switched to semesters, a "dead day" was usually scheduled.

The original resolution stated, "The present organization of semester final examinations at SIU-C is counterproductive to the efforts of student achievement and maintenance of the highest possible GPA's (grade point averages)."

The final exam schedule for fall semester has been released but has not been distributed, according to Steve Foster, assistant director of Admissions and Records. He said he hopes to get the schedule to the post office Tuesday for distribution.

News Roundup

Earthquake jolts Peking; no damage reported

TOKYO (AP)—A strong earthquake jolted Peking on Monday, swaying high-rise buildings and reviving grim memories of the killer quake four months ago. Japanese reports said. Foreigners based in the Chinese capital, reached by telephone from Hong Kong, said there was "no visible damage" and there were no immediate reports of casualties.

Earthquake monitoring stations around the world said the quake struck at about 9:54 p.m., (8:54 a.m. EST), and measured between 6.5 and 6.8 on the Richter scale. That would indicate a quake capable of extensive damage, but considerably weaker than the massive earthquake in northeast China last July 28. The Richter is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one whole number corresponds to a ten-fold increase in ground motion. A reading of 6 is considered a strong quake, 7 means a major earthquake.

Victorious party wants Quebec independence

MONTREAL (AP)—The Parti Quebecois, which wants independence for Quebec and its French-speaking majority, swept the Liberal provincial government aside Monday in a major election upset. Premier Robert Bourassa, who called the elections a month ago when private Liberal polls showed half the voters dissatisfied with his performance, was unseated by PQ candidate Gerald Godin. Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque retained his seat.

Levesque's separatist party had only six seats in the last National Assembly, but Monday night it had won 56 of the 110 seats in the provincial legislature and was leading for 14 others. The Parti Quebecois has promised a referendum to determine if Quebec should remain part of Canada.

Swine flu vaccine developed for children

WASHINGTON (AP)—A swine flu vaccine has been developed for children age 3-18 years but there will be enough for only one of every 10 children in that age group this flu season, the government said Monday. The Public Health Service said its Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices recommended that children receive a split-virus vaccine in the form of one shot followed by a booster four weeks later.

Only eight million doses of the vaccine for children will be available before February—when the influenza season usually nears its end—meaning that only four million children can be immunized with the two-shot regimen. There are between 40 million and 50 million children between the ages of 3 and 18 in the United States.

Money surplus may forestall postal rate hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Postal Service turned in a $15-million surplus between July and September, a performance officials said may forestall a rate increase that had been expected next year. The announcement came as a surprise because of the string of deficits in every quarter since 1972.

At one time, the Postal Service projected a deficit of $425 million for the latest quarter. Only last month, it announced a record $1.2-billion deficit for the fiscal year ending last June 30. Postmaster Gen. Benjamin R. Bailar indicated that the financial improvement may result in a delay in the next request for higher postal rates. Originally, he had felt that an increase in rates probably would be needed next year, he said.

Press council to hear DE complainants

The University-Community Press Council will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the Home Economics Lounge to hear complaints about the Daily Egyptian. The meeting is open to the public.

The council, which was created last year to deal with comments and complaints about the Daily Egyptian, will discuss publication of want ads for term paper mills and the Daily Egyptian's policy on letters to the editor which concern the newspaper's advertisers. Both issues were raised by council members.

Persons with complaints about the advertising, news or editorial content of the Daily Egyptian should direct them to the appropriate department of the paper. If these results prove unsatisfactory, complaints should be addressed to Steve Tock, chairperson, University Community Press Council, 6C Georgetown Apartments, Carbondale.

Tank sweep silences guns of Beirut

By Edward Cody
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian tanks and troops silenced the guns of Beirut on Monday in a massive occupation that handed Lebanon its first real chance for peace in 19 months of civil war.

Joyful Moslems slaughtered sheep in a traditional Arab gesture of welcome. Women sent up Arab cries of joy and dowsed Syrian soldiers with rose water and rice as columns of T62 and T54 tanks swept over the city from three directions.

"Allah is great," shouted bystanders as the camouflage painted tanks clanked by. "Arabs will be victorious."

The welcome was subdued in Christian quarters, where rightist militiamen ordered civilians to stay off the streets. Christian leaders seemed to feel more strongly the sting of Beirut's first foreign occupation since U.S. Marines landed to stop an earlier war in 1958.

Only a few instances of resistance were reported as the 6,000 troops and 400 tanks took over, all in Moslem and Palestinian-controlled areas. The Syrians fired only a half dozen grenades and a few rounds of submachine gun fire in a six-hour sweep that began with the first light of dawn.

By nightfall, they had established control over Beirut's battle zones, Palestinian refugee camps, radio stations, government buildings, the airport and key intersections. The sound of gunfire died away for the first time since an earlier cease-fire more than nine months ago.

"That's it. The war is over," exulted a Moslem Lebanese after driving the length of the front-line where thousands of his countrymen have been killed.

But observers noted that the religious, social and political divisions that exploded this tiny Arab country remained unsolved. The Syrian occupation provided only the force to prevent further fighting, they said, leaving solution of the problems for the future.

The Syrian forces slated a takeover of Tripoli, 60 miles north of Beirut, and of Sidon, 25 miles south, within the next few days, Arab League officials said.

Wage-price controls discounted

Carter: tax rebates, pump priming in sight

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said Monday that tax rebates and increased government spending may be needed to spur the nation's economy, and he discounted the likelihood of wage and price controls.

Carter said at a news conference that he believes that unemployment can be reduced to between 4 and 4.5 per cent over a long period of time, which he said would be equivalent to 3 per cent of all adults over 20 in the jobless ranks. He said this would take two to four years.

Currently unemployment is 7.9 per cent.

The President-elect also repeated his belief that inflation can be held down by applying federal programs to areas of highest unemployment rather than through uniform national program.

Carter said he cannot at this point be specific on details of his plans to decrease unemployment might call for a general tax reduction or one-time tax rebate.

But he said that his possibilities for increasing the money supply include "tax rebates and spending."

Carter, at his second news conference since his election, announced he will fly to Washington next week to meet with Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns and some of President Ford's Cabinet members, possibly including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Carter announced also that Jody Powell, his press secretary as governor of Georgia and during his presidential campaign, will be White House press secretary.

In a three-minute statement preceding the question-and-answer period Carter said his selection of Cabinet members and other top government officials will be slow, careful, cautious and deliberate and that he personally will interview top contenders for each choice.

He said those who are not selected for Cabinet rank may well be in line for other top government positions including ambassadorships abroad.

"I have not made a decision up to this point on any one of the appointments," Carter said.

And he warned against speculation, saying that he will remain tight-mouthed and that "no one on my staff or in my family is authorized to speak for me."

He noted that he plans a meeting soon with leading members of Congress and business and labor leaders in which he expects to discuss jobs and taxes among other subjects.

Federal Reserve Chairman Burns has said he does not intend to resign his key monetary post and Carter said he believes he will be able to work harmoniously with Burns.

Brezhnev: no Yugoslavia interference

By Boris Boskovic
Associated Press Writer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev renewed a pledge to President Tito on Monday that Moscow will not interfere in Yugoslavia's internal affairs, and accused the West of spreading "fairy tales" to spoil Yugoslav-Soviet relations.

The promise, made in a toast at a formal dinner, was one of the concessions the 84-year-old Yugoslav leader had hoped to win the three-day talks with Brezhnev.

Referring to the discussion during the American presidential campaign of a possible Soviet invasion of Yugoslavia after Tito dies, and the American reaction to such an invasion, Brezhnev said:

"It became recently fashionable in the West to cast shadows on our mutually good relations and to spread about it most absurd fabrications."

"Authors of such fairy tales try to present Yugoslavia as a helpless Little Red Riding Hood which the terrible and bloodthirsty wolf — the aggressive Soviet Union — is preparing to dismember and devour," Brezhnev said.

"The Soviet Union firmly abides by endeavors to strengthen and develop with Yugoslavia friendly relations based on complete equality, mutual respect and trust and absolute non-interference in interior affairs," he said.

Relaxed Ford tackles 1978 budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford returned Monday to chilly Washington from eight days of golfing, swimming and a minimum of government business at a California desert resort.

He was "relaxed and rested and ready to complete the duties of his presidency," his chief spokesman said. He has 86 days left in office.

Ford scheduled staff meetings Tuesday morning and a three-hour afternoon session on the fiscal year 1978 budget.

But another vacation may be coming up this weekend. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller invited Ford to his estate near Tarrytown, N.Y.

"There's a good chance the President will go" for a weekend of relaxation with a "friend and colleague," Nessen said.

Mrs. Ford, daughter Susan and son Jack flew back with the President from Palm Springs, Calif.

Ford spent about 90 minutes Sunday looking at property in the Southern California desert resort, with an eye to buying after his term ends Jan. 20, Deputy Press Secretary John Carlson said.

But the Fords have made no decision about where to live, Nessen said.

They own houses in suburban Alexandria, Va., and Grand Rapids, Mich., and a condominium apartment in the ski resort of Vail, Colo.

"To my knowledge, he has not decided to sell the Alexandria house," Nessen said.

During this stay at Palm Springs, a favorite Easter-vacation spot for the Fords, they rented for an undisclosed sum the home of Leonard Firestone, ambassador to Belgium.

Ford said that his daily rounds of golf and swimming trimmed four pounds off his weight.

Carter up to his neck in political debts

By James J. Kilpatrick

Back in July, when Jimmy Carter won the Democratic nomination, it was said that politically he owed nobody anything. Now, in November, he is dodging a debtor's prison. He owes everybody something, and the IOU's are coming due.

The victor who wins by a landslide is home free. The fellow who squeals into office cannot escape the creditors hammering at his door. New York City gave Carter a margin of 675,000 votes—more than enough to swing New York 14 electoral votes—and on the day after the election Mayor Beame was on the horn. "Jimmy," he was saying, "let's talk about those bond guarantees."

The President-elect will be hearing from the blacks, of course. Their massive support in the Southern and border States permitted Carter to rack up 134 electoral votes before his opponent even got started. In his first press conference after the election, Carter publicly acknowledged the debt. He will pay it off in part by minority appointments to high offices, in part by seeking legislation affecting jobs and welfare.

It may be possible to stall Hizzoneer; after all, what is good for Abe Beame in Manhattan is good for Frank Rizzo in Philadelphia, and good for every other troubled mayor as well. A program of Federal guarantees of municipal bonds would raise some profound constitutional questions. Satisfying the black creditors should cause no particular problems. But the President-elect will have his hands full in coping with a third collection agency: organized labor. The AFL-CIO's George Meany, chomping a big cigar, is waiting to be paid.

A recent analysis by Congressional quarterly indicates the magnitude of Carter's debt. A spokesman for the labor's Committee on Political Education says modestly that "we put out our biggest effort ever." And the spokesman points not only to Carter's victory, but also to the election of 19 Senators and 258 members of the House.

What would President Meany ask of President Carter? It is quite a list.

For starters, organized labor doubtless will remind the President of a specific pledge in the Democratic party platform: "We will seek repeal of Section 14(b) known in dog Latin as the "common situs picketing bill." Both houses of Congress approved the bill a year ago, only to have it vetoed by President Ford in January. Meany will have a handy-dandy copy in his pocket when he makes his social call.

There is much more. Carter is committed to a party platform that says: "We support the right of public employees and agricultural workers to organize and bargain collectively." The platform promises "to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act to speed up redress of grievances of workers asserting their legal rights." The platform promises an increased minimum wage, a comprehensive mine safety law, minimum federal standards for workmen's compensation, extension of the Occupational Safety and Health Act to cover all employees, and such goodies as public works projects paying union wages.

To be sure, some of the Senators and Congressmen that Big Labor thinks it has bought and paid for may prove a disappointment. Repeal of the right-to-work laws, which seems a simple matter, could turn out to be tough. But other aims could be achieved by executive order, or by presidential guidelines to the regulatory agencies. When it comes to the machinery of federal power, Meany is a master mechanic. And as a bill collector, as Carter will soon discover, Meany has no peer in the realm.

of the Taft-Hartley act which allows States to legislate the anti-union open shop." Procedurally, such an act would require a bill only two sentences long—one sentence to nullify the State laws, another sentence to fix an effective date. The right-to-work laws, in Meany's view, pay up promptly on this obligation.

The party platform makes another pledge: "We will support the full right of construction workers to picket a job site peacefully." This refers to the bill that was

'Messiah complex' permeates all in medicine

I was amused by Mr. Coleman's letter (DE, November 12) concerning medical care. Apparently, the "messiah complex" so prevalent among MDs has seeped down even to the sophomore pre-medical level. Coleman's comments about the "ignorant and obnoxious people who walk into the emergency rooms" are telling. This type of an attitude toward people is, unfortunately, often inculcated into aspiring physicians quite early in their training, leading to a situation whereby physicians frequently earn upwards of $50,000 annually treating these same "ignorant and obnoxious people."

I would suggest that Mr. Coleman consult the literature of the professionalization of MDs—he would learn that most aspiring and practicing physicians are far more interested in wealth, status, etc., than in the alleviation of human suffering.

Having worked for a number of years as a therapist in a hospital setting, I can vouch for the fact that all too often patients are looked upon as a commodity or mere annoyance, and that delays in treatment are often due to negligence, incompetence or callousness.

I would suggest that we break up the AMA monopoly and flood the market with MDs, thereby fostering competition and driving the incompetent and inhumane physicians out of business.

Clergyman's position on terrorism a disgrace

The Reverend Ryan reached a new and most hypocritical approach to the Middle East conflict Tuesday night.

Although talking precisely about Arab Palestinian rights, he said nothing as to Jews and their rights; in fact, in a certain point in his talk—as a response to a question—he had mentioned that Israelis are entitled to only—and I quote—"certain rights." What are they? The right to mercy?

Also, the Reverend Ryan took a position on terrorism in a way that would have disgraced any clergyman.

for he connoted that the massacre of the Israeli Olympic team in Munich in 1972 or the unforgivable massacre of the school children in Kibbutz Maalot are merely means to attract the world's attention to a just cause; but an elimination of Arab guerrillas and saboteurs by Israeli troops are a worldly crime! His quantitative thinking is but a reflection of Arab logic, as Israel values life in an unprecedented manner.

Gamal Abdul Nazer, Egypt's dictator in the '60s, had said in several occasions that he wouldn't hesitate to sacrifice one million of his people if it helped to eliminate Israel.

And at last, the Reverend Ryan tried to create an awareness in the audience as if the Palestinians are the core of the Arab-Israeli conflict. In doing so, he was reluctant to explain what were the reasons for the war waged on Israel in 1948 (Israel's declaration of independence) as there were no Palestinian refugees in existence at that time! ### Library material destruction a serious matter

Glenn Brucker's letter in the Nov. 9 DE concerning destruction of library materials should be taken seriously by every student and faculty member who depends upon the resources of Morris Library.

It is true that one of the most serious problems we face is the willful destruction of library materials. Articles removed from periodicals or pages torn out of books do untold damage to our collections and impose serious problems on all library users. Prices of books and journals are increasing at unbelievable rates, and we need to use all our resources to purchase new materials. Trying to obtain replacement copies of articles or pages is very costly and time consuming. There are seventeen coin-operated copying machines in Morris Library. In order to provide adequate service, each machine is checked twice daily. Despite rising costs in other areas, we have worked hard to keep the per copy cost to five cents. Thus, for a small expenditure of funds and time, library users are able to make copies of pages from books and journals.

Members of the library staff take seriously their responsibilities as guardians of books and other learning resources. It is impossible, however, to run a policing activity while trying to serve the scholastic needs of students and faculty users. We appeal, therefore, to all members of the University community to abide by the common principles of honesty and decency in protecting library materials. Meanwhile, thanks, Mr. Brucker, for your letter of concern.

Definition of freedom in 'Bread Machine' faulty

by Joseph M. Webb

One of the slickest, subtlest pieces of propaganda for the American system of private corporate profit that I have ever seen was broadcast Nov. 9 over WSIU-TV. The program was built around a 35-minute film called "The Incredible Bread Machine."

The film was put together, apparently, by a group of young economics students, using money they say came from various corporate foundations and from numerous individuals within the corporate establishment.

The film has a specific viewpoint: it wants an end to governmental intervention in corporate business. A brief discussion that followed the film on WSIU purported to offer the "other side" of that viewpoint: Walter Heller, a liberal economist, was interviewed so that he could say that some governmental intervention in business is needed; as he put it, the government must occasionally intervene "if we are to protect ourselves."

The problem with the film and the discussion is much deeper than that, however. It is in its whole underlying—and very simplistic—assumption that in this capitalistic system there are only two fundamental choices: of a "free market" (for corporate activity) or of a market "controlled" by the government.

That, however, is simply not the only choice; in fact, it does not even raise the most important issue with which we are faced in this country. The primary issue is not whether we should have corporate competition or corporate monopoly; it is not whether we are to have what the film calls "economic freedom," meaning corporate freedom, or government intrusion.

The most basic issue is whether we are to have an economic system that is privately owned, privately operated for the financial profit of the few who own it; or a system that is collectively owned and controlled by the workers whose labor actually produces the output of the system. And—it must be emphasized—there is a world of difference between collective worker ownership and what the film called "governmental" (or bureaucratic) control.

The film however, is merely a symptom of many other deeper problems that affect those of us in higher education. The fact is that American (and Western) corporate capitalism is in deep trouble. The world's wealth continues to be centralized within fewer and fewer private, corporate domains. The international drive for ever-increasing corporate profits continues to run roughshod over everything in its way, whether human or environmental. The private ownership of emerging technologies continues to eliminate work and work opportunities for laborers both within this country and throughout the world.

Fortunately, workers the world over are stirring restlessly against this international system of private ownership and profit; and in one part of the globe after another, the workers are moving to take control of their own systems of productions, distribution and communication.

The immediate problem is that we in the university community continue to operate as though these realities either do not exist or are irrelevant. The detailed and perceptive writings of Marx and, indeed, of many others, offer valuable attempts to dissect and understand the ramifications of private ownership of capital; but those writings are not, in any significant way, a part of American higher education. What results is the critical blindness of these economic students who made the "Bread Machine" film.

The alternative that the film does not even acknowledge is collective worker ownership of the vast means of production in this country. It is not a utopian alternative; it is a terribly maligned and unexamined alternative; it is also the only alternative that offers the long-term possibility of creative work for all and the construction of genuine human community.

It is too bad that the young people who made the "Bread Machine" film have been able to obtain fine college educations without ever having to consider this alternative seriously. As a result, they have presented an implicit defense for the system of elite monopoly capitalism without, it seems to me, even being aware of the consequences of doing that.

By Michael Mullen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The never-ending circus called the SIU administration has rolled through a three-ring week.

First, SIU President Warren Brandt sent out a memo concerning the SIU seal. The best redesign of the seal I saw this week was in one of the English graduate assistants' offices. It's appeal centered on an adult sea lion, rendered atop some blocks of ice, deftly balancing a beach-ball on the tip of its nose. A more poignant satiric view of our illustrious administration would be hard to come by.

Secondly, it was revealed that some of our administrators were benevolently compensated for their lack of tenure. There is no doubt that an organization should see that its high-level people are amply compensated for their thankless jobs. It's just too bad the administrators are more interested in taking care of themselves before they pass on a few morsels to the University's backbone, namely its faculty. I guess our administrators are firm believers in that old adage: "Them that's got, get."

I wonder how big those pay raises would have been if the administrators were evaluated on as rigid a set of guidelines as our non-tenured faculty. If ineffective administrators were asked to leave at the end of their contracts, there would be a convoy of moving vans rolling toward the interstate.

The most interesting event of the week oc-cured at the Board of Trustees meeting Thursday where Brandt asked the board to reaffirm its support of the U.S. 51 bypass.

The controversy surrounding that ribbon of concrete need not be documented here, but Brandt's lack of preparation in the matter is interesting, to say the least.

I fully realize that Brandt has a plethora of pressing matters to contend with, such as the redesign of the SIU seal and pay raises for administrators. But if he were to ask the board to reaffirm its support for a project that would cost the taxpayers some $17 million (last estimate), one would think he'd have some grasp of the project's history.

Perhaps he is not aware of the checkered history of the bypass. This is understandable since Brandt has only been here roughly two years. But at least he should have studied the project's history in local legislative bodies.

One of the trustees asked Brandt what the Jackson County Board's position on the project was. Brandt replied that the County Board had taken no stance. He was later reminded that the board had voted unanimously in early 1973 to reject the project as inadequate. Brandt replied that he had "forgotten" about that board.

In his defense, it might be argued that he forgot about it because it happened nearly four years ago. Perhaps he overlooked it, but an administrator of Brandt's caliber should know these things. That's what he gets paid in excess of $50,000 to do.

Brandt was asked later about the ecological implications of building a major highway through the School of Agriculture's research areas (and let's not forget the administration's emphasis on research) and through a flood plain. He admitted that an environmental study of the project had never been done, and wouldn't be done until further progress on the project is made (i.e. they won't see what effect the bypass will have on the environment until it is approved).

If that's not a case of putting the cart before the horse, I don't know what is. Why the trustee's approved the project in the first place under these conditions is a mystery.

I will admit that, on paper, any plan that will improve traffic conditions in Carbondale is appealing. But don't the people have a right to know what effect this project will have on the environment before such an august body as the Trustees approve it?

SIU's administration is usually right on top of decisions such as this. They immediately form committees and study groups. Why hasn't Brandt looked into this situation a bit more thoroughly?

The Board of Trustees should be complimented for withholding reaffirmation of support for this project until further information is available. Hopefully, some of the new information that will be provided to the Board and to Brandt will be some sort of environmental study.

Book suggests unconventional ways to avoid rape

HOW TO SAY NO TO A RAPIST AND SURVIVE by Frederic Storaska. Warner Brothers, Inc., October 1976. 222 pp. $1.95.

"Some women, when assaulted, are raped, beaten, mutilated, even murdered. Others escape not only without injury, but also, fairly frequently, without even being sexually attacked. Why?"

Storaska, who is the executive director of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault, demonstrates his knowledge of and experience in handling rape situations by answering this question in his recently published, informational book, "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive."

A Review

He clearly demounces the traditional methods of escaping rape situations such as screaming, struggling, running and using weapons. He explains that these methods only antagonize the rapist and generally are not successful.

His basic contention is that while rape is one of the worst things that can happen to a woman, mutilation, murder and loss of a limb are worse. He notes that studies show that 76 per cent of reported rape victims are not injured; therefore, Storaska believes that a woman should not do anything that will lead the rapist to do anything more than rape her.

Storaska illustrates many ways to evade rape without being injured. He advocates two techniques of stopping an assault when the victim's life is in immediate danger. Relating to the reader by using first and second person, Storaska effectively conveys these methods through examples of how quick-thinking women avoided rape. He also cites useful rules that a woman, placed in a rape situation, should follow.

His first rule is for the victim to retain or regain her emotional stability. Secondly, she should treat the rapist as a human being, because if she acts as though he is inhuman, he will not feel the need to stay within normal human restraints.

The third rule is to gain the assailant's confidence. The rapist is just as frightened during the assault as the victim is. For her own safety, a woman must find a way to ease the rapist's fears. Unless this is accomplished, the victim is in danger throughout the assault. The rapist deals with threats in two ways—fight or flight.

Rule number four is that a woman should go along with the assailant until she can safely react. Although her impulse will be to act in immediate self-defense, she should stall for time by doing what the attacker says or at least indicating that she is about to do as he says.

This will allow time to regain her composure.

As the last rule, Storaska stresses that the victim should use her imagination and good judgment to avoid rape. This varies from faking cramps, going completely limp and pretending to faint to making her self unattractive and unfeminine by burping, belching, urinating or defecating.

Whatever the victim decides to do, Storaska emphasizes that she must make it believable and should not try to do anything beyond her capabilities.

The two techniques Storaska recommends when the victim's life is in immediate danger is the eyeball push and the testicle squeeze.

The eyeball push consists of the woman placing her hands on the side of the assailant's face and gently pulling him as if she were going to pull his face toward hers for a kiss.

Then she should place both thumbs over his eyes and press. Pressing hard enough, his eyes will be pushed against his cortex and it will kill him. At the very least push, he will go into shock and pass out.

In the testicle squeeze approach, the woman gently places her hand on one of the assailant's testicles and suddenly, without warning, squeezes hard. This one squeeze will send the assailant into instant shock.

Storaska recommends these tactics because if the victim decides she cannot go through with it, the assailant never knows that she intended to harm him; however, if she does go through with it, the assailant will be left incapacitated, giving her plenty of time to escape.

Throughout the book, Storaska explains why he believes his methods will work, cites cases of where they have worked and especially emphasizes what a victim should not do and why.

At last someone has written a book that deals with rape practically. It cuts through the traditional methods of avoiding rape and offers real advice and fool-proof self-defense measures. This is a book that all women should read to prepare themselves in case they are involved in a rape situation.

Vatican liberals spur Swiss Catholic revolt

By Hanns Neuerbourg

Associated Press Writer
ECONE, Switzerland (AP)—An elderly archbishop who has vowed to fight the "virus" of ecclesiastical liberalism is on a collision course with the Vatican, threatening to provoke the first serious schism in the Roman Catholic Church in more than a century.

Risking possible ex-communication, the most Rev. Marcel Lefebvre, 70, has emerged as the firebrand leader of a traditionalist movement that claims fast-growing international support in its opposition to theological reforms enunciated by the Second Vatican Council.

As the head of a seminary in this Rhone Valley hamlet, the one-time Archbishop of Dakar has made Ecône a rallying point for conservative Catholics alienated by what they call modernistic trends in their church. To the Vatican, Ecône spells revolt.

In the six years since founding the seminary here, the archbishop has steadily widened the scope of his antiforeigner crusade, from saying Mass in the old unreformed rite in Latin to challenging the entire concept of church renewal.

ELO, Seger disappoint

'New World' sounds old; 'Night Moves' stumbles

By Keith Tuxhorn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A New World Record
Electric Light Orchestra
United Artists UA-LA679

The Electric Light Orchestra swipes a lot of styles from a lot of groups, but they swipe themselves more often than anybody else.

Many times this can be interpreted as a band continuing in its particular style, but when it comes to the point of the listener recognizing passages from previous albums, as is the case in this album, it becomes mocking and disappointing.

That's to say that it isn't enjoyable. Much of the work on "A New World Record" is quite innovative and played with impeccable skill. But listen closely and tell yourself the chorus on "Telephone Line" doesn't sound like the Bee Gees; that "Livin' Thing" doesn't bring the strains of "Showdown" to mind; and that

"Rockaria!" doesn't recall "Illusions of a Major."

In addition, there are several misuses as to song arrangement here. The high backing vocals on "Livin' Thing" and "Telephone Line" are overly sappy and nearly destroy the beauty of the latter song. And the watered-down chord playing on "Do Ya" takes away much of the primal, overwhelming energy of the Move's original version.

But ELO produces very good pieces when they don't worry about maintaining their style. "Mission," "Above the Clouds" and "Shangri-La" are all consuming ballads that set an emotional mood; and, despite that chording, "Do Ya" remains one of the greatest rock and roll pieces ever written.

Nevertheless, ELO is a very respectable band, bringing a blending and finesse of rock with strings that none of the Moody Blues ilk could ever hope to accomplish. But at several points the group have decided to blatantly rest on their laurels, and it hurts their reputations. People can listen to Elton John if self-mockery is desired. ELO is a distinguished band that should remain so.

A Review

Night Moves
Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band
Capitol ST-11557

Just as Bob Seger is on the verge of getting the notoriety he has deserved for many years, he gives us his weakest album in a long time. "Night Moves" is only a half-excited attempt to produce the honest excitement Seger is noted for.

The album's first two cuts are the highlights. "Rock and Roll Never Forgets" has some killer lyrics and a non-stop enthusiasm that rivals "Rosalie" and "Katmandu" in its power. With "Night Moves" comes the sincerity that Seger always delivers, done in a gentle ballad style.

After these openers, the album slides into mediocrity, offering either reworkings of previous tunes or uninspired riffs that go nowhere. The best example of this is "Come to Poppa," a single uninteresting riff with lethargic singing that seems to be one of the low points of Seger's career. And "Mary Lou," which makes an all-out attempt at enthusiasm, is just a shadow of previous numbers.

Perhaps Seger hoped for this album to be carried along on the success of his previous live album.

but the quality difference is so evident that any hard-core rocker will probably throw this album under a different spot in his "S" file—under saccharin instead of Seger.

Thriller 'Marathon Man' runs against surplus intrigue

By Scott Singleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Marathon Man" is an excellent thriller combining the talents of Dustin Hoffman, Laurence Olivier, William Devane, Roy Scheider, and director John Schlesinger. But those who have read William Goldman's 1974 novel will agree that much was lost in the transition.

Dustin Hoffman plays Babe, a Columbia graduate student who strives to be a marathon runner, and gets tangled in a web of intrigue. With almost Hitchcockian skill, driven by fear that overcomes his natural timidity, Oliver's Nazi makes it hard to imagine him ever doing Shakespeare again.

Although "Marathon Man" is extremely effective (those who are already terrified of dentists may wish to avoid it) the movie should have been better, considering the talents involved.

Goldman is a principle offender. He adapted his own novel for the screenplay and did a poor job of it. The characters are never developed properly, making the plot hard to follow. One expects more from the man who wrote the screenplays for "All the President's Men" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

Schlesinger is also to blame. The winner of an Oscar for his direction of "Midnight Cowboy", Schlesinger should not have relied on the stars to carry the story when he did not take the effort to have a smoothly flowing storyline. There are too many disconnected sequences, too many details left unexplained.

But if the viewer ignores the caliber of the cast and crew, forgets what could have been and concentrates on what has been done, "Marathon Man" is definitely worth the admission price. Just remember to bring cotton for your ears for when the screams get too loud.

A Review

director Schlesinger shows Babe struggling to escape from the nightmare plots of a former concentration camp dentist, Laurence Olivier, trying to recover his booty of diamonds.

Babe's unwilling involvement comes with a visit from his brother, Roy Scheider, a CIA-type operative who is a courier for the sadistic Olivier. As the blood starts flowing and the bodies start dropping, Babe's survival depends on his ability to outwit his Nazi torturers.

Hoffman, as usual, gives a convincing performance of a man

Ovation undeserved

'Atlanta Rhythm' songs: no focus, drowned by mix

By D. Leon Felt
Student Writer

The Atlanta Rhythm Section won a standing ovation Saturday night at Shryock Auditorium, despite a loud, muddy sound mix and boring material.

"Alright let's rock 'n' roll." Lead vocalist Ronnie Hammond yelled as the band broke into the title track of their second album, "Backs Are Up Against The Wall." A slow, innovative blues called, "Mixed Emotions," followed as the show got off to a strong start.

However, two or three songs later some serious flaws in the band's performance became obvious. The most apparent difficulty was a muddy sound mix which obscured the lyrics during Hammond's decidedly hoarse attempts at singing. Only organist Dean Daughtry overcame this problem with a powerful tenor shout on Little Richard's classic, "Long Tall Sally."

Unfortunately Daughtry never managed to get an interesting riff out of either his organ or piano. The loud, bass-dominated sound mix drowned out his best efforts.

A lecture on dance and movement in the performing arts will be given Friday at 11 a.m. at the Main Stage in the Communications Building.

Contest money

given to students
in music contest

A total of $15,000 is available to young composers in the BMI Awards to Student Composers competition. The BMI Awards project gives annual cash prizes of $300 to $2,500 to encourage the creation of concert music by student composers under the age of 26.

The 1976 BMI Awards competition is open to student composers who are citizens or permanent residents of the Western Hemisphere and are enrolled in accredited secondary schools, colleges and conservatories or are engaged in private study with recognized and established teachers. Entrants must not have reached their 26th birthday by Dec. 31, 1976.

The 1976 competition closes Feb. 15, 1977. Official rules and entry blanks are available from Oliver Daniel, Director of BMI Awards to Student Composers, Broadcast Music, Inc. 40 West 57th Street, New York, New York, 10019.

Lead singer Hammond, who appeared to have been signed on from a cross-town bar in a moment of drunken indiscretion, opened the final portion of the show with a dedication to a better known Georgian.

"We'd like to dedicate this one to Jimmy Carter," Hammond crowed. "We used to call him Jimmy when he'd come up and visit us in the studio, but I guess from now on we'll have to call him Mr. President." The band broke into another muddle in tribute to their hometown, "Doraville, Georgia."

From "Doraville," to the encore, the identity of the songs became as muddy as the awful sound mix that delivered them.

This is not to say that there were no high points. Bassists Paul Goddard took off at one point and delivered a tasty, spirited solo, while guitarist J. R. Cobb, who had played a singularly unimpressive guitar all night, blew some creditable harp lines.

Lead guitarist Barry Bailey was competent on his Gibson Les Paul, using sheer volume to distinguish himself from the pack. However, Bailey rarely managed to find a riff that sounded unique, instead relying on every rock and blues cliché ever invented, then repeating them ad infinitum. Better guitarists are starving on Carbondale's "Strip."

Ultimately, besides the sound mix, which was inexcusable in an opera house, the Atlanta Rhythm Section failed to live up to its claims of being a "progressive" rock band. They rocked and rolled all night, but the cleanest song of the set was, "Long Tall Sally," and no stretch of the imagination could label that "progressive."

Furthermore, the band lacked the focus of the best of their "dixie-rock" brethren. The Outlaws are cleaner and less pretentious. Charlie Daniels and Marshall Tucker weld country music and rock with consummate skill, while the now-defunct Allman Brothers were the bluest, most desperate sounding band around.

The Atlanta Rhythm Section lacks a real sense of identity, instead relying on clichés, a rebel battle flag and exhortation of the crowd to get up and, "clap yore hands." A crowd that is genuinely moved by the music doesn't need to be begged or berated to get up.

In all fairness, it wasn't such a bad show, it just didn't meet the professional and spiritual qualities one expects from name performers.

Appearing before the Atlanta Rhythm Section was a Texas born Country singer from Denver, Colorado—Katy Moffatt.

Ms. Moffatt came on solo with a guitar and ran threw an impressive set of country standards and originals, including a clever up tempo number called, "Armadillo Mama." Other fine renditions included a bluesy arrangement of Patsy Kline's, "After Midnight, Searching for You," and "Dead End Street," by Hank Snow.

Although her voice broke once during the performance (she confessed to needing a belch) Ms. Moffatt displayed a beautiful, rich contralto voice and a talent for phrasing. Her set was innovative within the confines of country music, and entertaining as well.

Journalism students discuss tenure status of two faculty

By Lydia Gabriel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 30 journalism students met Monday afternoon to discuss the possible denial of tenure to two members of the journalism faculty.

Jim Santori, editorial page editor of the Daily Egyptian and main speaker at the meeting in a lobby of the communications Building, said the unofficial word is that Ralph Johnson, assistant professor in the news-editorial sequence, and F. T. Marquez, associate professor in the advertising sequence, have not been recommended for tenure.

Johnson said later in the day that he had received notice he was not being recommended to receive tenure. Marquez said he had not yet received official notification of what his tenure recommendation is.

Although no official statement has been made on the decision or the reasoning behind it, Santori said sources have suggested that Johnson may be denied tenure because of ratings given him on student evaluation sheets.

"They have never been used before in this regard, but they seem to be now," he said. "They're saying Johnson is being fired because of students, and I don't see any correlation."

"It was never emphasized to us how important the evaluations were," said Bob Wren, associate editorial page editor of the Daily Egyptian.

Santori said numerous graduate and undergraduate students in the department have written letters and signed petitions in favor of retaining Marquez and Johnson.

Marquez came to SIU two years ago from a position at the University of Wisconsin and had not been told he would be up for tenure in one year, Santori said. "He was given a heavy workload plus he had to bring the advertising department up from its probationary standing," Santori said.

Johnson is teaching four courses this semester, is a member of the Daily Egyptian's Editorial Committee and a member of the paper's Policy and Review Board.

Santori said he wants to see a postponement of the tenure decision for Marquez and a reevaluation for Johnson. He said he feels there has been a deemphasis of the news-editorial sequence program and that tenure decisions are getting to be too research oriented.

Besides George C. Brown, director of the school, only three others in the school have tenure.

Santori said "Three are research oriented," he said. "The crafts of journalism aren't being accented."

Last spring students in the School of Journalism protested the negative recommendations for tenure given to William Harmon, managing editor of the Daily Egyptian, and to Wendell Crow, journalism instructor, by C. B. Hunt, Dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

Crow was eventually denied tenure. Harmon's position was changed to that of adjunct professor, taking him out of tenure consideration.

Santori said he feels the Journalism School is "going downhill. The word is out and the problem will be in getting additional teachers."

Professionals from other universities may be hard to find once they see how tenure is going at SIU, Santori said.

A report on the tenure process is currently being put together by Dale McConaughay and Sherrie Good, both graduate students in journalism.

The report will be a look at the tenure process — how in fact it works and who wins and who loses, McConaughay said.

Fashion designer to speak to group on "instant dress"

Hungarian fashion designer, Teresa Zitter, whose designs have appeared on the pages of Harper's Bazaar, Mademoiselle and Women's Wear Daily, will speak at the Clothing & Textiles Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, in Home Ec 201.

Zitter has appeared on nationwide television shows such as Mike Douglas and Girl Talk with her "instant dresses". "The first dress I ever draped was a tablecloth. I pinned it together so I would have something better to wear on Sundays," she said.

In 1962 Teresa married Robert Zitter, professor of physics at SIU. She then decided to turn the "instant dresses" which she had been making for her friends into a part-time business.

Zitter has appeared on television, at conventions and before women's organizations throughout the country, and in the last few years has added gourmet cooking to her repertoire. "It's something I can do that I feel doesn't interfere too much with my home life," she says.

A look at views of Senate seekers

West siders stress attendance, input

I, Marie Mesic, Action Party candidate for the Student Senate from the West side, hope to gain a cohesive communication between students and Student Government.

A few of the issues I advocate are regular attendance of meetings by senators; more representation of minorities in the judicial systems; and publication of information and its dissemination to student body. I feel guidelines and priorities for the expenditure of fees need re-evaluation in order to justifiably equalize monies among the recognized organizations.

I will be a devoted and ambitious senator—a vote for me is a vote for a more concerned, informed, represented Student Government.

Marie Mesic
West Side
Action Party

If elected to the Student Senate, I will make certain that concerns of the international students are represented in the Student Senate.

I will also represent the interests of the cinema and photography department, as I am currently a student in that department.

Shortage of parking space has created a serious problem for students. I plan to recommend the expansion of present parking facilities to accommodate the student's needs.

Tuition and fees have been rising steadily, and it is certain that attempts will be made to increase them again. I plan to voice my opposition to any such hikes.

Hamid Shams
West Side, Tea Party—Now

I have an opportunity to enter Student Government as a knowledgeable outsider.

I reported the activities of Student Government for the Daily Egyptian during summer term 1976.

If elected, I will push for speedy selection of the students' attorney. Students have paid for a students' attorney during four semesters, but still there is not an attorney.

Also, a dental care program for students should be formed. Student Government has considered such a program, and I will support the programs implementation.

West Side students can vote for eight candidates to fill eight vacant senate seats. I would appreciate your vote.

Matt Coulter
Senior—Journalism
West Side

P.O.T. People hear the same lines from candidates year after year, that is why I stand for P.O.T. (People Organized Together).

Our student government seems to be doing the same things year after year and I feel that is one reason for the apathy that exists.

Let's put energies towards new ideas. Input from students would help! Senators from the West side should meet with students from that district to discuss ideas.

Let students share more input and responsibilities in selecting and arranging show in the Arena. Let's use activities funds for students wants and needs.

Let's get a student attorney.

Bob W. Goodale
Junior—Radio-TV and Classical Studies
West Side

I, as a candidate running for re-election to a West Side seat on the Student Senate, would work for the following improvements in Student Government:

1. better student organization accountability in requesting and spending student activity fees;
2. permanent guidelines established for fee allocations;

3. better representation of minority groups on both the Judicial Board for Governance and Judicial Board for Discipline;

4. better attendance on the part of senators at both senate and committee meetings;

5. more publication and dissemination of information from Student Government to the student body.

Pete Allison
Senior—Social Welfare
West Side, Independent

As a candidate running for Student Senate, West Side, some of the goals I would like to work towards are: more minority participation in campus activities, more accountability of organizations receiving student dollars, more coordination between campus media and Student Government to improve communication to the students.

I would support the fight against on-campus housing price increases, support an on-campus dental health program and work towards convincing the Illinois State Scholarship Commission to allocate money for students during the summer.

If elected I will attempt to promote student programs and interest to the best of my abilities.

Mary Jo Pallardy
Senior—Social Welfare
West Side, Action Party

Fees, feedback are East Side issues

In an interview with Mike Wallace, the Shah of Iran acknowledged that SAVAK (Iranian Secret Police) agents are on duty in the U.S. with the consent of the American government.

On Nov. 5, the New York Times noted that the secret police agencies of other countries have "routinely spread terror among their countrymen who reside as aliens in the U.S.," including harassment of "even second-generation American citizens."

The existence of secret police agencies in the U.S. is a threat to the democratic rights of everyone. I will do my best to prevent such violation of democratic rights on this campus.

Farhad Keshawarz
Junior—Electrical Engineering
East Side
Tea Party Now

The Student Senate needs to realize its responsibility to inform students of their functions.

An agenda of topics should be publicized prior to each Student Senate meeting. Many events affecting student welfare occur at these meetings, and this would allow interested students to attend and provide feedback.

The Student Senate should continue to publicize results of their meetings, and do so on a more regular basis.

The status of student programs, such as student attorney and Recreation Building, should be regularly released to the news media. This would alleviate confusion among students as to how their fees are being used.

Mark J. Palmquist
Sophomore—Accounting
East Side

Students Interested in the University (SIU) Party

The basic problem facing students today is poorly managed student fees. The student attorney fee should be cancelled until an attorney has been hired.

Confusion among students as to where their fees go and to whom they benefit is widespread. Fee apportionment should be publicized to inform students of the programs they are supporting.

Also, student programs such as student to student grants and usage of the newly built Recreation Building need evaluation as to their benefits to the students who are the sole funding organization of each.

Brush Towers

Candidates talk apathy and experience

I am running for Student Senator because I want to improve the living and social conditions in both Schneider and Mae Smith. I believe that the needs of the students must be met.

As a sophomore in my second year in the Towers, I know the needs of the students.

Some of the improvements I will make when elected are: 1) faster service on washer and dryer repair; 2) TV sets available on every floor; 3) weight-lifting gear in Schneider; 4) better quality game equipment; and 5) more organized activities such as dances, parties, etc.

These things will be done when I am elected Student Senator.

Tom McGarry
Sophomore—General Studies
Brush Towers

Fellow residents of Brush Towers, my name is Wayne Brown and I want to represent you in the Student Senate.

Issues that my opponents mention, such as broken pool sticks and elevator damages, cannot be handled by the Student Senate. These issues can only be handled by the house council, of which I am activities chairman.

There is one large issue in this election. It is the possibility of a housing cost increase next year. If elected, I will try to prevent an increase.

On Nov. 17 you will have the chance to vote for Wayne Brown, No. 3 on your ballot.

Wayne Brown
Sophomore—Pre-Law
Brush Towers

I believe that student government has been ineffective in dealing with the problems of Brush Towers residents. There is a need for positive representation of Brush Towers residents in the Student Senate.

Representing Brush Towers, I would direct my full attention to forming a bond between residents of Brush Towers and all of student government. The residents of Brush Towers need a strong, capable and effective representative in the Student Senate. By voting me senator, the resident of Brush Towers will be guaranteed strong representation. On Nov. 17, I strongly urge you to vote for effective leadership: Garrick-Clinton Matthews.

Garrick-Clinton Matthews
Freshman—Business Marketing
Brush Towers

When elected, I, Jeff Jovien, Student Senate candidate for Brush Towers, will work for the better use of student fees and elimination of apathy in government.

I will see that student activity fees are used to benefit most students.

The Student Senate is currently experiencing internal difficulties because of a lack of interest on the part of a number of our senators. I'll work hard so that students have a senate that they can be proud of.

I will take my job seriously and I hope for your support on election day.

Jeff Jovien
Sophomore—Social Welfare
Brush Towers

I, D.J. Zutowt, am presently a senator from Brush Towers.

I am running for re-election for the spring term of 1977. My past experiences will speak for themselves.

I am presently the chairperson for academic affairs and am on the rights and welfare committee.

I am familiar with the functions of Student Government and the work involved in order to do my job effectively.

There is great apathy among the student body and, unfortunately, I cannot deal with the problem alone. But with your vote, I'm willing to do my job as thoroughly as I feel I have done before.

D.J. Zutowt
Sophomore—Design
Brush Towers

The Student Senate is desperately in need of a major overhaul.

As it stands, the Student Senate is ineffective and has a natural tendency to accomplish nothing.

When I originally decided to run for the senate, I took a poll of Brush Towers area residents. It indicated that sixty-five percent of those polled had a moderate or less interest in the senate and government in general.

Currently, I am floor president at Schneider where I am active in restructuring the house council. If elected, I will work hard to restructure the Student Senate into an effective form of government.

Jim Steele
Nursing Pre-professional
Brush Towers

I, Peter Alexander, am running for Brush Towers Student Senate representative.

Arriving in Carbondale from New York I bring much student government experience.

My achievements include: junior high school student president, junior and senior class president, and a Schneider Tower house council alternate.

My non-political achievements include: National Honor Society member, National Merit Scholarship semifinalist, and membership in "Who's Who Among High School Students."

My prime goal is to show SIU that Brush Towers is alive and truly interested in student government.

I appeal for your support of my goal. Vote for Peter Alexander on Nov. 17.

Dental program, IPIRG spotlight election

Candidates will compete for 17 seats

Up for election are one full-term seat from University Park, one full-term seat and one half-term seat from Thompson Point, one full-term seat and one half-term seat from Brush Towers, four full-term seats from the East Side Community and eight full-term seats from the West Side Community. Twelve senators will retain their seats.

Students must have their ID cards and signed fee statements in order to receive a ballot to vote. Brush Towers, University Park and Thompson Point residents must also show a current meal card.

Placement of candidates on the ballot is determined by a lottery within each senatorial district.

Polling places will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A candidate need not live in the district he or she wants to represent prior to the election. The rules state that the senator must be a resident of the district by the first senate meeting of the semester.

Each district may have one senator for each 700 students residing in the district. Another senate seat may be added if the population of the district increases by 400 students.

Qualifications for senators include a 2.00 overall grade point average (GPA) for undergraduates and a 3.00 overall (GPA) for graduate students. Students must be in good academic and disciplinary standing.

Persons are not allowed to hold more than one office concurrently in student government. The student government president and vice president are not allowed to be officers in any other recognized campus organizations.

Senatorial candidates may spend a total of $33 on their campaigns. The campaign expenditure limit for executive offices is $75. An itemized expense list must be submitted to the election commissioner no later than three working days before the elections.

Voters must give address, district

For the first time voters in the Student Government elections will be required to give their address and the district that they live in.

In the past students voting in the Student Government elections have only had to give their name and I.D. number.

Jim Wire, Student Government election commissioner, said that asking voters to write down their address and the district that they live in will prevent students from voting out of their district.

There are five voting districts at SIU. They are: Thompson Point, Brush Towers, University Park, East Side community and West Side Community.

Student needs main goal of Triads, Neely

The mainstay of effective student government lies in its ability to perceive the needs of all students and respond to them effectively. This necessitates a continual discourse between students and the various elements of student government, in particular the Student Senate.

I pledge myself to facilitating that discourse by working closely with the organizations that affect University Park. I believe I am capable of assessing my district's problems and with the cooperation of the various student organizations, progress can be made towards solving these problems.

Student opinion sought

IPIRG fee question placed on ballot

By Joel Spinner
Student Writer

A referendum asking for support of the Illinois Public Interest Research Group's (IPIRG) refundable $1.50 fee will be on the Student Government election ballot Wednesday.

Don Wheeler, Student Body vice-president, said the referendum was placed on the ballot to add support to IPIRG's effort to establish the refundable fee.

The Student Senate passed a resolution in support of IPIRG's efforts. Wheeler said. However, the senate also expressed concern that additional student input was needed on the matter.

Wheeler said he interpreted their concern to mean that a referendum should be held to find out student opinion.

"It was at my request that the issue be placed on the ballot," Wheeler said. "I informed the Student Senate that the issue would be placed on the ballot and no objections were raised."

The referendum reads: "Do you endorse and support the Illinois Public Research Group at SIU-C, and the establishment of a refundable $1.50 "IPIRG Fee" and SIU-C as the collecting agent."

Graduate Student Council (GSC) passed a resolution asking for the referendum to be placed on the November ballot, Wheeler said. IPIRG representatives felt a referendum would drag out the matter too long, but the GSC felt it would carry more weight with the Board of Trustees.

Mike Fisher, Director of IPIRG at SIU-C, said that his group did not directly ask for a referendum on the matter. He felt that the referendum wasn't needed to add support to the group's petition drive. The referendum will not hurt the petition drive, Fisher added.

Wheeler said that IPIRG had asked earlier in the semester for such a referendum, had lost interest when the petition drive began.

Wheeler said the referendum was open to all students to vote on and that a substantial turnout was needed to make the referendum a success.

Support for dentist program will be gauged by referendum

By Joel Spinner
Student Writer

Student Government is asking support for a proposed Student Dental Program in the form of a referendum on the Student Government election ballot Wednesday.

Mike Smith, student senator, said the purpose of the referendum is to make sure students support the program.

He said the idea of a dental program has been discussed at SIU for several years, but in January a concerted effort was started to push for the program.

Smith said that if the program is instituted, a fee would have to be established to provide funding for the program. Smith said he felt the fee should be mandatory to insure a consistent flow of money in the program.

The referendum states, "Would you be in favor of having a primary dental health care program on the campus of SIU-C?" "If so, how much do you think should be added to the student medical fee per semester for this program? $2.00, $3.00 or $4.00?"

Support exists on all levels of the University, Smith said. Sam McVay, Director of the Health Service said that the program could be in operation within 90 days after Board approval.

Smith said the Rights and Welfare committee of the Student Senate recently conducted a survey on medical care at SIU and many students voiced a need for comprehensive dental care at SIU.

The dental service would mainly handle minor dental care and emergency dental work but the service could provide up to 90 per cent of normal dental care, Smith said. The service would take care of emergency care.

tooth extraction, fillings, teeth cleaning and preventive dental care. He added that slight charges would be levied for services, except for X-rays for which there would be no charge.

Smith said if the program were enacted, one dentist and six to eight hygienists would be employed. He said that if a demand for services increases, possibly another dentist could be hired.

Smith said the cost of the program would be roughly $70,000 per year. Smith projected that nearly $100,000 would be raised per year, if the added fee were $2.00 a semester.

He said he felt the possibility exists that the funds would be held for a semester in order to defray the initial expenses. "But I hope the program can be started soon in order to provide dental care in the near future," Smith said.

Two compete at Thompson Point

Having served on the Student Senate for the past year as a representative of Thompson Point, I have grown to appreciate the fine job done by the Student Senate at Southern.

Though the Senate has had a few problems with some of its members, it hasn't allowed these problems to interfere with business.

The Student Senate is a strong, well-structured organization having the ability to aid students by providing programs that meet their needs.

I have enjoyed representing the residents of Thompson Point. I believe I have served them well, expressing their needs and wishes to the Student Senate.

Currently in the Student Senate, there are several good, hard-working and devoted members. Unfortunately, there are not enough of them.

I have experience on the Thompson Point Executive Council, so I know how to operate effectively in a legislative body such as the senate. In addition, I have enough time to devote to senate responsibilities.

During the current semester, Thompson Point has had only half as many senators as it is allotted. With your help, I will fill in that void and join with the dedicated Student Senators to make an even better University for us all.

SIU gets HEW grant for student aid program

By Sherry Bonds
Student Writer

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) recently granted SIU-C $75,000 to establish the Special Supportive Services program. These funds will supplement the $18,000 received from local sources.

Fred Hamilton, director of this new program, formerly called Developmental Skills, said it is designed for students with academic potential who are from culturally deficient backgrounds. The program will provide a basic knowledge of fundamental skills and present supplemental instruction individually, directed toward the students' academic needs.

Located in Woody Hall Wing C, Specialized services diagnoses deficiencies by reviewing applicants' test scores, including ACT evaluations. Hamilton said, "The identification process that focuses on admission criteria emphasizes and requires a personal interview to be admitted." The specialized services offered through this program include: personal and career counseling, curricular and instructional teaching of such basic subjects as math, English, writing and a tutoring program.

Participants in the program must be citizens of the United States who conform to low income standards, unless they are physically handicapped or speak limited English. Special Supportive Services is one of the three programs funded by HEW under the trio designation.

Age of Goombah cartoonist playing hockey with reality

By Gail Wagner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Age of Aquarius has given rise to the Age of the Goombah, according to Pete Mueller, freelance cartoonist, unpublished poet, "hard-core socialist" and resident fry cook at the Family Fun Restaurant in Carbondale.

"People today are too comfortable," elaborated Mueller, whose pen-and-ink cartoons have intermittently graced the editorial pages of the Daily Egyptian since 1969. "They've a smug self-complacency rather than a wild, social rage."

Mueller tries to reach those "who enjoy insane humor" with his cartoons. "They disturb a few people and make others chuckle," he said.

Thrown out of art class in grade school by a "crazy, crazy" art teacher, Mueller has rebounded well. He recently printed a book of his cartoons, entitled "Reflections of an Absent Mind." The thin, bluepaper volume is billed a "Shoestring Production."

Actually, Mueller and Greg Vertrees, a friend who owns Jiffy Print, produced the book on their own. The first run was 200 copies, of which about one-third have already been sold, Mueller estimated. The book is for sale in local shops.

Mueller doesn't consider himself an editorial cartoonist, although he said his cartoons usually end up on editorial pages. "They want to use me, but don't know quite where," he said.

"I like social politics and just plain sight gags. I don't prefer to do political cartoons regularly," he continued.

His work is filled with such recurring devices as flies. "Flies are kind of neat. They're symbols of futility, the inevitable, insignificance..."

Dogs, musical notes and signs also populate his sketches, as does a squat, bulbous character whose purpose is to refute, Mueller said. In one cartoon the "refuter" simply comments to a listener, "It seems that I seem."

Mueller reached into a rhetorical grab bag to explain some of the points he tries to make with his cartoons. "Isolation of a peculiar sentiment, knocking of stereotypes, slams at emotional manipulation..."

It's playing field hockey with reality," he noted.

As a freshman at SIU in 1969, Mueller became involved in campus politics through his cartooning. After running for student senator from the "then moderately radical" Action Party, he gave up his work at the Daily Egyptian.

That year as a "plain old prank" he and a friend stole the hands off the Pulliam Hall clock. He pleaded guilty and was placed on parole. Later, during the spring, 1970 riots, he was asked to leave town because of threats to members of his party. Mueller eventually left SIU, working for a while as an assistant manager at Tropical Plant Rentals Inc. in Libertyville and continuing his cartooning.

He's drawn for such diverse publications as the 1971 and 1972 Action Party Coloring Book, an SIU birth control handbook, the Pacific Sun in Mill Valley, Cal., the Waukegan News-Sun and the Libertyville Independent Register.

Mueller returned to SIU in 1974 and graduated with a bachelor's degree in English last spring. He got his degree, because "I felt responsible to present my parents with an accomplishment."

Family Fun is the 15th restaurant he's worked in over the years. Since he burned a finger on his first day of work there, his cartoon flow has been temporarily halted.

"I'm fighting a losing battle to keep alive financially," Mueller said. He is paid the equivalent of two and one-half student work hours for each cartoon published in the Daily Egyptian. To supplement those incomes, he has begun a cartoon strip to be used in WTAO advertisements.

"I'd like to succeed in cartooning. It's easy to get published, hard to get paid," Mueller said. "I don't want to be rich, I just want to get by."

Newman Center sponsors free Thanksgiving meal

By Sean Allen
Student Writer

About 400 persons will get a free turkey dinner with all the trimmings at the Newman Center's annual Thanksgiving Day meal, but they must pick up their tickets in advance.

The meal, from noon until 2 p.m.

Thanksgiving Day, is open to everyone, but tickets are required to order to get a good estimate of the number of people coming, said Pat Sims, secretary and group program coordinator at the center.

"The tickets will be available until noon the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. If people can't pick up the tickets, they can call here at Newman and we'll mail the tickets out," Sims said.

The center is located at 715 S. Washington Ave. The phone number is 457-2463.

Sims said the cost of the meal to the center depends on the number of people who come. Last year, 13 turkeys were consumed by 300 to 350 people at an estimated cost of between $300 and $400.

The turkey dinner will be financed by the Newman Center. Additional support may come from Student Government, Student Government and the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce have contributed funds for the event in the past, Sims said.

The turkeys will be bought from and prepared by one of the local food stores, Sims said.

Volunteers for the event will set tables in the center's gymnasium, rehearse and trim the turkeys and serve the meal along with the culinary extras that have been donated by the people, Sims said.

Father Jack Frerker, one of three priests in the Newman Center ministry, said that the dinner started very simply as an act of kindness on the part of Father Bill Longust, former director of the Newman Center and now priest at the St. Francis Xavier parish.

"Father Bill Longust started it in 1970," Frerker explained. "He realized that there were some who were stuck here over the holiday—lonely people who couldn't go home or reach relatives—so he bought a turkey and had dinner for about 20 people."

Frerker said that the great thing about the meal is the cooperation "that happens on both sides of the counter."

"There are people helping through personal involvement, but then there are those who won't be here. As they walk out of services during the weeks before Thanksgiving they press a five-dollar bill into our hands and say, 'here's for the meal,'" Frerker said. Frerker said that even the people who have come just to eat the meal often help to clean up afterwards to demonstrate their appreciation.

"The dinner provides a nice time of sharing—sharing in the volunteering, donating and dinner conversation and sharing in the warm atmosphere of the meal," Frerker said.

Positive atmosphere prevails despite tight research budget

Editor's note: This is the seventh in a series of articles examining the 12 colleges and schools of the University. The articles take a look at where they are today and at the problems they are facing.

By Chris Moenich
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The students and faculty of the College of Science aren't giving in to tightened research funding.

"Everybody is crying about funding," said Matthew Freund, Physiology Department chairman, "but it is important we continue in an assertive, definitive and calm way. It is our responsibility to remind the public of the importance of our work."

James BeMiller, acting dean of the college, said, "The College of Science has excellent facilities. I have a very positive attitude toward the students, faculty, and facilities."

The College of Science, which consists of four life science and three physical science departments, is completely laboratory oriented. The laboratories, both outdoor and indoor, are located in the two Life Science Buildings, Neckers Building, Parkinson Laboratory, the Communications Building, and in such places as Red Lodge, Montana.

There are 1,541 science majors under the direction of 93 College of Science faculty members. There are an additional 52 faculty cross-appointed with the SIU Medical Schools in Carbondale and Springfield.

College of Science faculty members both teach and conduct research. Ninety-three per cent of the faculty have tenure. BeMiller said that although budgets of both the University and the federal government are tight, the College of Science has a good record for receiving research grants.

The Department of Zoology has the largest number of students in the college. William Lewis, department chairman, said the department is large enough to give a first class zoology experience on every level, but, he said, "the way it looks now, from the financial standpoint, there won't be many new programs in our area."

The existing research labs are funded from private industry and from federal grants administered through the state. Lewis said research grants are harder to get now than a few years ago. He said he wished they had more funds for graduate students.

David Schmulbach, Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry chairman, said that since there has been a decline in effective state support, the department is concentrating on external funding. Seeking industrial support is one of the major projects.

The department is also concerned with improving the graduate programs. It offers both a masters' degree and Ph.D.'s Schmulbach said, "As far as we're concerned a good graduate program will benefit the undergraduate program."

Richard Watson, Physics and Astronomy Department chairman, said, "Even though a fair share of proposals have been written and accepted, we are busy with research and teaching. Consequently, the writing of proposals has been postponed."

Robert Jackson, acting chairman of the Microbiology Department until Maurice Ogur returns next semester, said that writing research proposals is an evil of the current conditions.

"It takes virtually a year to receive support after applying," he said, "and writing the proposals takes away from productive research time."

Jackson added that while external sources usually fund for a length of two years, most researchers apply for a three-year grant. "The whole area of science is in decline because of pinching from inflation," he said.

Robert Mohlenbrock, Botany Department chairman, said that when he became chairman in 1963, he wanted to make the department the best botany department in Illinois, the midwest and the country.

Mohlenbrock said the department has a good reputation in teaching and over one-half of the faculty have outside grants totaling $400,000. About 50 scientific papers are published each year.

"We are probably the strongest botany department in Illinois," he said. "We have a congenial atmosphere, and our only problems come from salary and funding."

The Geology Department has other worries than those stemming from research funding alone. Its building is old and inadequate.

Russell Dutcher, chairman, said Parkinson Laboratory, where the department is located, is in unbelievable condition. "There are some unsafe aspects to the building and sometimes it's too hot or cold to conduct experiments in the laboratories," he said. "SIU is doing all they can to help, and when we renovate, we will be in very good shape."

Dutcher said the construction design will be completed in November. The main improvements include hot water, increased power, an elevator and central air conditioning.

Jackson, associate professor in microbiology summed up the attitudes toward current problems.

"Despite the drawbacks the researchers are not going to give up," he said. "Science becomes too much a part of your and we're going to hang on and keep trying."

Maroon defeats White 108-100 in annual intrasquad swimming meet

By Lee Feinswog
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Dave Boyd won two events and was on a winning relay, and Lynn Atkinson took two individual events and was a part of two winning relays as the Maroon team edged out of the White team for a 108-100 win in Friday night's men's and women's intrasquad swim meet.

Boyd captured both the 200- and 100-yard freestyle events, beating Rick Fox of the White team in each event. For Boyd, it was the first time he had been on the winning team in an intrasquad meet in four years, yet he always has done well in them.

"I don't know what it is about these meets," the senior said. "I'm lucky—I guess. I get in shape a lot faster than a lot of the guys. Fox was sick all week and that hurt him," he said.

Atkinson, a freshman, was pleased with her performance.

"Usually I start out a lot slower. For me the times were really fast," she said.

It should be noted that although Atkinson won both the 50- and 100-yard backstroke events, the fastest backstroker on the women's team, Nancy Schnorbus, was not at the meet, yet Atkinson was less than one-tenth of a second off the school record in each event.

Phi Sigma Kappa wins IM football final

By Jim Misunas
Student Writer

Phi Sigma Kappa whipped Bench Eagles 24-0 in the SIU men's intramural flag football final Saturday as it completely dominated the action offensively and defensively.

Phi Sig quarterback Bob Knezevich threw for two touchdowns in the game, raising his season total to 21, and back Kirk Champion scored three times to lead the fraternity powerhouse to the victory.

Defensive back John Vukevich led Phi Sig's defense by intercepting three passes. Phi Sig picked off four Bench Eagle aerials in the game. Twice in the contest Phi Sig scored touchdowns on the first play following interceptions.

"The defense did the job for us," said Phi Sig Coach Kirk Champion, "as they all year.

"Our defense gave up only four touchdowns on the year," Champion said. "Vukevich played well, but it was really a good all-around team effort that got us the shutout."

Phi Sig opened the scoring after a scoreless first period. Knezevich's

Basketball tickets are on sale

Dates for the sale of basketball tickets were announced recently by the Athletic Ticket Office.

Tickets for the St. Louis Classic on Nov. 26 are on sale in the Arena. Tickets are $6 for the general public and $2 for SIU students with a paid a fee statement and an ID.

The Maroon men's team beat the White men by a 50-43 score. The 1000-yard freestyle provided a lot of excitement, as Brian Gadaken came from behind to catch Dave Swenson. Both Gadaken and Swenson are All-American. Swenson came back to beat Gadaken in the 500-yard free, winning by less than half a second. Gadaken's margin of victory in the 1000.

In a losing cause, Greg Porter of the White team won three times, taking the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard butterfly and was swam the butterfly leg on the 400-yard medley relay.

Other winners for the men were: Dennis Roberts in the 50-yard free, Mike Salerno in the 200-yard back, Steve Jack in the 200-yard breaststroke, and Gary Mastey in the diving. Salerno was also on the winning Maroon team in the 400-free relay.

Collen Maloney won two events for the losing women's White team, taking the 50- and 100-yard freestyles. The Maroon team won the women's competition by a 58-57 score, despite strong showing by Maloney. Diane Friedman, and freshman Mary Jane Sheets.

Sheets set a new school and pool record for the women's team as she won the 200-yard individual medley. She was the first person ever to win quarterback sneak on a fourth down and one from the Bench Eagle 21 yard line was the key play. He made the first down by inches, then Bench Eagles were nailed with a 10-yard unsportmanlike conduct penalty for arguing about the placement of the ball.

Champion scored on a 3-yard run two plays later. After a Bench Eagle punt, Phi Sig scored again. Knezevich passed to end John Scott and Champion for first downs before letting a 10 yard touchdown pass to Champion for the score.

On the next series, Phi Sig defensive back Jerry DeSimone intercepted. A 15-yard "lacking" penalty moved the ball to the Bench Eagle 23 yard line. On the next play Phi Sig scored on a "trick" play.

Knezevich passed a floater to George Vukevich behind the line of scrimmage. Vukevich promptly delivered a second pass to a wide open Champion for the score with only seconds left in the half.

"We knew the double pass play was open," Champion said. "We'd been saving it for the championship game, and it worked perfectly."

the event for the team, since this is the first year the event is being held i dual meet competition. She also edged out Mindy McCurdy in the 100-yard butterfly by one-tenth of a second.

Friedman captured the women's diving events and won the 100-yard breaststroke.

Other winners for the women were: Anne Gutsick, who won the 200-yard free and was on both Maroon winning relays, Molly Schroeder in the 50 breaststroke, Debbie Brooks in the 500 free, and Jan Salmon and McCurdy in both relays.

While the times for the meet were not that good when looking at NCAA qualifying times, everyone seemed to be encouraged. Both the men and the women worked out twice on the day of the meet, and the fact that so many strong performances were turned in is remarkable.

Salerno was pleased with the showing of the men's team.

"Everyone's ahead of their times. There's real good team unity and Bob (Steele) is preparing us well for a long term goal," he said.

Joyce Craven, coach of the women's team, felt her team "is in much better shape time-wise than last year. We were just a shade away from some school records in a few events," Craven said.

In the second half, Knezevich passed to John Scott for the final touchdown on the first play following Vukevich's third interception.

Phi Sig's defense allowed only two first downs in the game, and forced four interceptions with a furious pass rush. Offensively, Phi Sig scored four touchdowns but no extra points. What went wrong?

"I guess we don't have an extra point play in our playbook," Champion said.

Men runners take fifth place in preparation for nationals

By Doug Morris
Assistant Sports Editor
SIU tuned up for the 1976 NCAA cross country championships by placing fifth Saturday in the District V qualifying meet in Stillwater, Okla.

The Salukis previously qualified for the NCAA finals by winning the Valley cross country championship and ran Saturday just to remain sharp.
Saluki sophomore Mike Sawyer placed fourth individually among over 80 runners, finishing just three seconds off the second place after 10,000 meters (6 and a quarter miles). Sawyer ran a lifetime best 29:56 over the distance.

Stan Vernon of the University of Oklahoma took individual honors, running a 29:47 and leading his team to a first place finish with 63 points. Kansas was second with 75 points, Missouri third with 88, Wichita State fourth with 94, and SIU fifth with 99.

By finishing first, Oklahoma joins SIU and Big Eight Conference champion Colorado as District V representatives in the NCAA's.

Individually for SIU, sophomore Paul Craig finished 12th, senior Jerry George finished 21st, freshman Michael Bisase finished 36, and senior Pat Cook finished 39th. A key to SIU's relatively high finish was Cook's time, fully a minute faster than his lifetime best in the 10,000 meters.

Thirty-seven teams, most bringing seven runners, will be invited to the NCAA finals. Eighty-four runners will compete unattached to teams, bringing the number of runners to over 300 at Denton.

"I've got a feeling about Sawyer," said Lew Hartzog, SIU head cross country coach. "I think he'll finish in the top 25 individually, which would qualify him for All-America in cross country."

"No matter how we finish in the NCAA's, I'll still consider this year a success," Hartzog said. "The main goal we have now is to defend the Valley championship next year."

The Salukis were not expected to reach the NCAA's this year, after a 1-5 season record, but upset Wichita to win the Valley conference championships.

Meeting set for intramural cage managers

The organizational meeting for SIU's men's intramural basketball is scheduled at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Davis Auditorium, which is located in the Wham Education Building on the first floor.

All team rosters must be submitted at the meeting in order to be officially entered in the league. Play starts Nov. 30. Blank rosters may be obtained in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals in Room 128 of the Arena.

"We left feeling quite good in regard to the proposal and we will present it to the national convention," said J. Neils Thompson, chairman of the meeting and faculty representative from the University of Texas.

NCAA may reduce Division I

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association proposed Monday to reduce Division I membership from the current 247 institutions to approximately 150 where football is the major sport.

The plan, which will be submitted to the NCAA Convention in Miami Beach in January, would drop schools with lesser football programs from Division I status. But such schools still would be able to compete on Division I levels in other sports such as basketball.

Some institutions would be able to compete in Division I in certain sports and then channel other programs into either Division II or III depending on their respective strengths.

Schools with four or five programs would be allowed to compete in one sport in Division I. Schools with six to eight varsity sports would be able to compete in a maximum of two Division I sports. Schools supporting nine through eleven varsity sports would be able to compete in three Division I programs and schools with 12 or more could compete in four Division I categories.

Saluki women gymnasts 'slip' in first Collegiate Classic

By Jeff Schwartz
Student Writer

The SIU women's gymnastics team entered the first-ever, two-day, four-team Collegiate Classic Friday night in the Arena, confident and prepared totally, according to 14-year veteran Coach Herb Vogel.

SIU also stepped into the action co-favored with California State University-Fullerton to win the team title Saturday night.

However, the Salukis saw all hopes of winning that title disappear only three events into their opening night meet against Arizona State.

ASU held a narrow three-tenths of a point lead after the vaulting and bars events over the host team going into the balance beam competition, which Vogel considered one of SIU's strong points.

But all six Saluki gymnasts fell off the beam during their performances which allowed ASU to pick up more than two points in the event and eventually, a 134.45-131.55 preliminary round victory.

California State defeated Southwest Missouri State in the meet's second preliminary, 136.20-128.80 Saturday morning to flip right into the team finals that night against ASU.

Cal-State came off on top of that challenge, 136.20-134.40, to win the first annual National Invitational Tournament of women's gymnastics.

"Had two people stayed on the beam," said Vogel, "we would've been in the finals. In fact, had we completed all six performances, we would've beaten ASU by almost five points."

Instead, SIU battled for third place Saturday afternoon and won, 135.60-133.05.

Had the competition gone as predicted, with the Salukis and Cal State in the finals, Vogel speculated spectators would've seen a very close, interesting meet.

"We thought we'd be equal to Cal in vaulting," said Vogel, "have a slight edge on bars, wipe them out in beam and get wiped out on floor. It would've come right down to the wire."

"But, that's like counting your chickens after they hatch when they didn't hatch too well."

The Collegiate Classic featured four of the nation's top five team finishers in the 1975 AIAW Gymnastics Nationals. Further evidence of the meet's quality was displayed as three of the four squads surpassed the national qualification standard of 134 points, with Nationals still five months away.

Individually, the Salukis did have one champion. Linda Nelson received a trophy as high scorer in the beam competition, performing an 8.95 routine. All the other high scorer trophies belonged to Cal State gymnasts. Karlyn Burdick recorded a 9.3 score in the vault while teammate Barbie Myslak came up with 9.2 and 9.3 performances on the bars and free-exercise. Myslak, a freshman, was also the all-around high scorer with 36.20 points, a nine-plus average in each event.

Because it was early in the year, we saw a good many errors, but we saw a lot of good tricks performed," said Vogel.

Women's cross country team places 17th at season-ending national meet

The women's cross country team ended its season Saturday with a 17th place finish at the AIAW national cross country championship.

A total of 222 runners

Basketball rule's interpretation meetings for students interested in officiating in SIU's men's intramural basketball league will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in the SIU Arena.

Wednesday's meeting is in Room 121 of the Arena, Thursday's in Room 119. Pay is $3.00 per game ($3.50 if certified). A current ACT family financial statement must be on file in the Student Work Office to officiate. Play starts Nov. 30.

representing 74 schools gathered at the starting line on a clear and chilly day at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Jean Ohly paced the Salukis with a 18:06.7 which placed her 60th in the field.

Coach Claudia Blackman had praise for the entire Saluki squad. "I was very pleased with all the times that our runners turned in. Jean had her best time for the season. It is always difficult to run in such a large group. At one point, Jean was in 80th place and she was able to overtake 20 other runners during the last half of the race."

Iowa State University successfully defended its national team title as three Iowa State runners finished in the top ten. Iowa State had only 62 points. Julie Brown from California State University-Northridge won the race. Brown lead from the start and covered the three-mile course in 16:29.8.

Peggy Evans was the next Saluki across the finish line at 19:04.8 (126th) followed by Linda Snovak 18:13.9 (136th), Cindy Ruester 19:27.5 (151st) and Trish Gradis 19:33.0 (157th). Cathy Chiarello 19:53.9 (180th) and Carol Anderson 21:08.0 (211th) also ran but did not figure in the final team score. Southern's team total was 630.

"The entire team did a great job and it took a whole team effort to finish as well as we did," Blackwell said. "Only 23 schools were able to qualify as a team (a school must have five or more runners meet the qualifying time) and I think it reflects the quality of our runners at Southern that we entered as a team," Blackwell added.

Salukis stopped by Bowling Green, 35-7

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio—For the second time this season the Salukis were thwarted in their bid to win their fourth straight game as the Bowling Green Falcons handed SIU a 35-7 loss Saturday.

The team will close out the season when it faces Marshall University next Saturday in Huntington, W. Va. A win in that game will give the Salukis their most successful season in 15 years.

To beat Marshall, SIU will have to play better than it did against Bowling Green. The team garnered only seven first downs and 180 yards against the Falcons. In contrast, BGSU had 28 first downs and piled up 469 total yards against the SIU defense which was a far cry from the one that had not allowed a touchdown in the last three games.

The start of the contest looked like it would be a close game. SIU stopped the Falcons and forced them to punt on fourth down.

However, in his attempt to block the punt, Vic Major missed the ball, and ran into BGSU's punter Greg Kampe causing a penalty.

Bowling Green got the ball back and scored eight plays later on a four-yard run by tailback Doug Wiener who led the Falcons attack with 132 yards and three touchdowns.

Still stunned by the quick turn-around, the Salukis were forced to punt on their first possession. Jeff Groth took the punt to SIU's 15-yard line, and Wiener scored three plays later giving Bowling Green a 14-0 lead, and virtually the game.

Late in the first quarter, Andre Herrera cut around right end stepped about one-inch, out-of-bounds otherwise he would have scored a 75-yard touchdown, which could have changed the tempo of the game.

Herrera had his poorest day of the year, gaining only 26 yards in 18 carries—less than 1½ yards a carry. The Falcons keyed on Herrera throughout the game, constantly gangling up on him every time he touched the ball.

After the game, Herrera said, "I don't know what happened. We've played about five or six teams this year with better defenses than them. I just can't figure it out."

Even with his poor showing, Herrera made his mark into the SIU record book once again as his 18 carries added to his total which broke George Loukas' old mark of 240 set in 1971. Herrera now has 258 carries for 1430 yards, a 5.5 average.

Bowling Green had a 28-0 lead at halftime after second-quarter pass scores of 50 yards to Groth and 12 yards to Steve Holovac. The passes were thrown by quarterback Mark Miller who set a new BGSU one-season total offense mark of 1,708 yards. Miller passed for 131 yards and rushed for 36 more in the game.

The Salukis played Bowling Green even in the second half, but the game was out of reach by then. Wiener scored his third touchdown in the third quarter on a five-yard run after a fumble by Herrera on SIU's 17-yard line.

The only SIU score came in the fourth period when reserve fullback Bernell Quinn rambled 17 yards for a touchdown although that score came after a break for the Salukis.

Punter Steve Mick was forced to punt, but BGSU was offside, nullifying Mick's 36-yard kick. On a fourth and on situation Coach Rey Dempsey decided to go for it, giving Quinn, a freshman the opportunity to score.

The loss, which spoiled a homecoming for Dempsey, dropped the Salukis to 6-4, and raised the Falcons to the same mark.

"Bowling Green had a good game plan," Dempsey said. "They were strong defensively, and they whipped us at the line of scrimmage. We were just beat up at the line."

Going into the game, Dempsey said SIU could have won the game.

"They were afraid of us," he said. "They didn't want to be embarrassed, but there were too many breakdowns for us to win the game."

"It was not a physical, hard hitting contest. They just completely dominated us."

Andre Herrera (28) finds a pack of Bowling Green defenders in his path. Herrera gained only 28 yards against the Falcons in the Salukis 35-7 loss Saturday, but still ranks second in the nation in total yards behind Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh. The whole SIU team had a hard time trying to move against Bowling Green. (Staff photo by Rick Korch)

Field hockey team finds first loss hard to forget

By Lee Feinswog
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"It was quite emotional at the end of the game. No one could really believe it had happened. It'll be quite awhile before any of us get over it."

Coach Julie Illner tried to sum up how she and the women's field hockey team reacted to the team's first loss of the year. Unfortunately the defeat eliminated its chance to go to Philadelphia for the national tournament, and ended a sort of

"impossible dream" for the Illinois champs.

SIU lost to Ohio State 1-0 in the first round of the Midwest regional, despite totally dominating the game in terms of possession time and shots taken. Ohio State made it to the finals but was losing to Central Michigan 2-0 with less than ten minutes to go in the game.

SIU then defeated Indiana State 4-0 in the consolation round behind the offense of Helen Meyer, but lost the game for fifth place to Davis and Elkins College 2-1, despite a goal by Lisa Millar. The team was understandably down in the last game.

"It didn't make any difference in the other games," Ann Stribling said. "We didn't make it to Philly, and that's what we'd been working for. We wanted to go not only for ourselves, but for Miss Illner. For her it was a dream," she said.

Statistically, the year was a tremendous success. The overall record was 15-2-2. The defense allowed just six goals for the entire season. And Helen Meyer rewrote her own scoring record book, as she drilled in 30 goals for the season, giving her a two-year total of 59. She holds the SIU scoring record for both season and career and still has two years to play.

For four members on the team, there will be no more chances. Graduating are Kathy Kincaid, Millar, Peg O'Connell and Diane Bednarczyk. For the rest of the team, there is the "wait till next year" and a chance to try again.

But still the sobering effect of the loss lingers on.

Men gymnasts place fourth

By Dave Heun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The men's gymnastics team opened its season with a fourth place finish in the Windy City Invitational Saturday at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle campus.

Iowa State won the meet with a total team score of 417.75. Nebraska finished second and Indiana State came in third.

The Salukis will face all three of those teams in dual meets during the regular season, and Coach Bill Meade feels his team will be ready when that time comes.

"It's too early to tell how we'd do in a dual meet with those teams," said Meade. "I'm not too disappointed in our showing this weekend, we have plenty of room for improvement."

Meade is confident that with the improvement he expects to see, the Salukis would be ready to compete with any of those teams, which he said, "all had a real good meet in Chicago."

The Salukis scored 194.95 in compulsory exercises and a 203.15 in the optional exercises for their fourth place total score.

Meade was pleased with the performance of Dan Muenz in the all-around competition. Muenz scored a 50.05. Kim Wall was right behind Muenz with 47.05 and Scott McBroom scored a 45.65.

Tony Hanson scored well in the pommel horse event with a 9.2 and Steve Davis notched a 9.0 on the rings. Davis also scored a 9.45 in vaulting and Muenz scored a 8.45 on the parallel bars.

"We're getting healthier every week," said Meade, explaining that the Salukis are starting to shake off some nagging injuries. "I was happy with Rick Adams performance. He was injured but still competed in four compulsory events and four optional events."

The Salukis next competition will be the Midwest Open in Chicago on Nov. 26-27.
